The San Luis Resort Updates Conference Center

A Multi-Phase Update Planned for Storied Hotel

GALVESTON, TEXAS — The 16-story San Luis Resort, Spa & Conference Center is renovating and renewing its interiors to complement its magnificent views of the Gulf of Mexico. Complete with new lighting, carpet, wall coverings and furnishings, the new look embraces neutrals and warmer tones mixed with brown, gold and mossy green accents with a touch of deep purple.

“We didn’t want to do anything too loud, keeping it professional with deep rich medium tones,” said Alicia Croley, interior designer with Landry’s. “It already looks fabulous.”

Croley is adding all new art as well. Two on-staff artists have created original and custom pieces to adorn the walls paired with sepia, historical photography featuring Galveston landmarks and events including the original Electric Park, Ft. Crockett, the Bunker and the old Balinese Room. “The art is integral to putting the space together,” said Croley.

The first updates to be unveiled are in the property’s Conference Center located on the first and second floors of the hotel. Retaining its IACC approval status, the Conference Center is now furnished with more than 200 Herman Miller Setu chairs and flip-top training tables.

The Conference Center’s new look and palette sets the tone for other areas slated for an upgrade. “This look will be seen in other areas throughout the lobby, promenade, the conferee lounge, the concierge desk, The Café, the grand ballroom and eventually the spa in 2014,” added Croley.

Guest rooms throughout the hotel are enjoying an update as well with 90 rooms already refinished with new bathrooms to match newly installed green and brown schemes. Concierge Floors (15 and 16), known for a light continental breakfast, afternoon fruits, sweets and water in the common areas, are also underway with partial upgrades to coordinate with the new décor. Remaining rooms that are currently outfitted with the cinnamon palette are slated for new interiors in 2014.

Club 10 will remain the same with a dazzling array of chic offerings, services and exclusive VIP amenities such as butlered breakfast service in its 21 rooms and featuring custom designed furniture and fixtures for a sleek and stylish residential environment.

“The San Luis Resort is consistently innovating in order to provide guests at each of our hotels with the most enjoyable and relaxing experience possible,” said Paul Schultz, Vice President of Hospitality for Landry’s Hotel Division. “Renovations to The San Luis will offer visitors a newer version of our first-class accommodations and service without compromising our attention to detail and array of services.”
